Durham and its University

Durham is a World Top 100 University. We are a distinctive collegiate university that is proud of its history and place in the North-East of England, but also shares thoroughly modern values with an international scholarly community.

Durham is not just a great place to study; it's a great place to be a student. The University is based in the beautiful and compact city of Durham, with an 11th century Norman Castle and Cathedral which make up a UNESCO World Heritage Site at its heart. We provide scholarship recipients with a truly integrated postgraduate experience, combining renowned research-led teaching with a stimulating academic environment, together with a vibrant cultural and extra-curricular scene away from the classroom.

Postgraduate Studies

Durham has three academic faculties, offering Master's courses in a wide range of specialist subject areas across our 25 academic departments. Most of our postgraduate taught degrees are one year courses delivered via a combination of lectures, seminars and tutorials by world-leading academics who are acknowledged as being at the forefront of developments in their subject area. Our taught degrees blend core and optional modules with a substantial dissertation or research project. Courses normally start in September or October.

Colleges

Our college system is at the heart of “the Durham experience”; our students tend to view our 16 colleges - some historic, some modern - as one of the best aspects of life at the University. As well as comfortable accommodation and excellent facilities, all our colleges offer a full range of student-led events, societies and other activities. Ustinov College is the University’s exclusively postgraduate College, a safe, dynamic and multi-national community that provides the ideal environment for international Master’s students to thrive, and is likely to be the home of the British Lebanese Association scholar. You may well meet some of our other Lebanese students there too!
